LIVING PEACE YOGA

Be Yoga, Teach Yoga

A leap of Faith and Love

This course is run by long time, dedicated yogis, husband and wife team, Ginny and Greg Clarke. Their whole-hearted love of yoga shines through in their teaching and the curriculum for this course. They will lead you through a rich yogic program which will cultivate your passion and discipline for all of the components of yoga. You will be personally mentored throughout the year, so that you leave feeling confident and able to not only teach a yoga class, but to live a yogic life.

Adding this new yogic perspective to your life will unveil beautiful and powerful changes to your outlook and process. It will encourage a re-evaluation of your life, of your love and of your liberty. The yogic unfoldment will be on one level, challenging - a worthy and stimulating challenge. Whilst on other levels, the teacher training will energise, uplift and educate. It will provide you with a solid template and precise tools which you can use every day to help you make sense of life's trials and tribulations. It will provide you with a calmer and clearer mind which you can navigate the ups and downs of life with more ease and grace. Living

Peace Yoga teacher training will change your life and past students all agree, it is for the better.

There is something precious about the group of yogis who attend each yoga teacher training. A close bond evolves as a bunch of strangers learn and grow together, forming beautiful friendships of like-minded souls. Many trainees begin this course for their own advancement and knowledge, and by the end of the course, opportunities arise which they never could have imagined.

More details about the course are shared within this document. It is advisable to come and meet Ginny and Greg, either at one of the upcoming Info Sessions (check website for dates), or pop along to a class and see what they do. It is important that you resonate with their teachings so that you get the best experience from your training.

"I feel very grateful that I have not only had 1 teacher, but two teachers guide me along this beautiful journey of learning more about Yoga. Ginny's extensive knowledge, calm and supportive manner is a quality that I aspire to in my teaching. I felt that no question was ever too silly to ask. Coupled alongside Greg's passion and deep understanding for a Yogic lifestyle, these 2 souls, live, breathe and do their life by Yoga which shines through every element of the course. As an added bonus, the clean, spacious waterfront studio has been like coming home each month. Endless thanks to you Ginny and Greg"

Who is this course suitable for?

Individuals interested in becoming certified Yoga Teachers.

Individuals who would like to explore and experience yoga at a deeper level for their personal use.

Yoga Teachers who wish to enhance their awareness and experience of yoga. Ginny and Greg have extensive knowledge and may share yoga in a new and fresh way you haven't felt before, which will benefit both yourself and your students.

Our Approach: Be Yoga – Teach Yoga

Living Peace teacher training offers practical and grounded teaching in how to share and instruct yogic techniques and philosophy. We believe that the best teachers embody yoga in their day to day life, therefore, our course is designed to help you dive deep into all facets of yoga so that the teachings become a part of your life. The course framework and length allow you to ingest and digest the full yogic experience.

The overall curriculum is drawn from the sacred traditions of Raja Yoga and Vedanta. The yoga asana component is based upon Hatha Yoga, whereby we provide you with a large database of poses which you can choose from, and we train you how to sequence the poses with a breath centric approach. We share many variations of the poses since modifications are required to teach the vast array of bodies who attend a yoga class. Our yoga is not associated with any particular yoga style or lineage (even though we have been trained in Krishnamacharya, Kundalini and Hatha Yoga). Instead it encompasses freedom for you to find “your voice” as a teacher and a yogi. We also ensure that traditional yoga is merged with the contemporary teachings of anatomy and physiology, so that students learn how to move in an effective and functional way, to help them in their daily life.

Facilitators

Ginny Clarke has been teaching yoga since 2003 and is a senior teacher registered with Yoga Australia. She has a passion for all facets of yoga and has completed 2 yoga teacher trainings, yoga therapy training and continues to study and learn with teachers she resonates with. She is a Yoga Therapist after studying with Ganesh Mohan and has a passion for both anatomical knowledge, functional movement, energetic expansion and spiritual upliftment. Ginny leads regular workshops and retreats and has taught at festivals around Australia. Her depth of yogic wisdom is broad, and her experience of yoga is ingrained in her daily life. Her aim is to train yoga teachers to understand the vastness yoga, the life-changing ability of yoga, as well as mentor teachers to find their unique and authentic voice as a teacher. Ginny will lead the asana, anatomy, pranayama, sequencing and teacher ethics in this course.

Greg Clarke / Hanuman Das is a respected teacher and author in the field of spiritual living. He has been studying, practising and living a spiritual life since his early twenties after being introduced to his teacher Ram Dass. He shares techniques in the areas of meditation, self-enquiry and inner strength with the objective of integrating spiritual life with daily life. He conducts workshops and retreats and has lectured on consciousness and spiritual living at yoga and spirit-based festivals across Australia. Hanuman Das is a gifted and entertaining speaker and author whose parables make learning joyous, clear and easy to incorporate into daily life. Greg will be leading the yogic history, yoga philosophy, meditation and pranayama aspects of this course.

Frequently Asked Questions

How do I know this training is right for me?

Embarking on a yoga teacher training is a big step, however, it is one you will not regret, especially if you find a studio where yoga is ingrained in the teachers and the students. Firstly, come along and meet Ginny and Greg, perhaps try a class and ensure that their style and energy resonates with you.

It is also useful to ask yourself these questions.

Are you:

- Passionate about yoga?
- Ready for transformation and growth?
- Inspired to pass on the yogic wisdom to others?
- Wanting to understand the full range and depths of yoga, and not just the postures?
- Ready to dedicate time and energy to your own personal development?
- Wanting to find and use the yogic skills to reveal more peace and understanding in your life?

The Living Peace Yoga Team truly value you as a student and we nurture and support you throughout your journey to becoming an inspiring yoga teacher and yogi.

Is a certain level of experience/fitness required?

The main requirement is a passion for yoga. It is desirable that you have been practicing some sort of yoga over a period of time (e.g. any form of yoga asana or meditation or philosophical studies). We believe that yoga is for every "body" and so a particular level of fitness is not required.

Will daily practice be a requirement? If so, how much time per day?

If you want to be a yoga teacher, then a daily yoga practice is "highly recommended" (but we won't be monitoring you). You reap the rewards of yoga in your daily life when you have a consistent, regular, and whole-hearted practice, whether that is 5 minutes or 2 hours per day – it all depends on your other life commitments. We can help you find the right practice for you.

What is the qualification after the training?

Students will become a qualified yoga teacher at the end of the training. They will be eligible for membership with the Yoga Australia as well as for professional indemnity insurance.

What if I can't do a headstand or hold a pose for 5 mins? I'm nervous about my physical capabilities! Can I still complete training?

Yoga is for every 'body'! There are many people in this world who should never even try a headstand and it is not expected that you can do all yoga poses. Every pose has many different variations, and these will be shared during the training to ensure you understand how to tailor yoga to suit the individual.

This training will help you discover the yoga that works best for you – the yoga you are passionate about. Whether you want to teach a vinyasa class, or a chair yoga class for seniors, or be able to teach meditation and philosophy, this training will guide you to understand all facets of yoga and then you can decide what path that's right for you.

Is there written/reading homework/assignments and how much time per week would be involved?

On average, expect 1 to 2 hours homework per week. Some weeks you might need to watch a video for anatomy, or read a chapter from one of the texts, or prepare to teach a few poses or write in a pranayama/meditation journal. Then there is the final written and practical assessment. See the Assessment Criteria above for more details.

What if I can't attend some of the training?

Ideally, attending all of the training is recommended, but since this training is extended from 6 - 9 months, we understand there may be the occasion when you can't attend a day or some of the day's training due to a prior engagement or illness. We can video record the sessions that you miss, and you can watch them at a later stage. Ginny or Greg can also schedule time reviewing what you might have missed and any questions you might have.
